Sir:

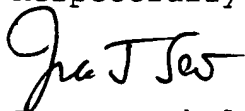

Applicant submits herewith copies of the references cited in the PCT Search Report, together with a Form PTO-1449 and copies of the German and Danish references cited in the Search Report.

DK 140856 claims a fire resistant building element with a grid of cellular-shaped construction material, of which the cells extend through the full width of the element from one side to the other and of which the cell walls are covered by a material that may swell when heated and which has a surrounding metal frame to fix the grid to the frame. An inner duct overlaps and keeps the grid in place and allows the grid to swell and move freely in relation to the inner duct during fire exposure. The inner side of the metal frame is covered by a material that may swell.

Respectfully submitted,
